

As someone who works in the technology field, the mere reality that Net Neutrality may be repealed both confuses and worries me. If the repeal happens, everyone who is not a large telecommunications company will suffer. Net Neutrality as a principle helps creativity to flourish, keeps internet ISPs competitive, and continues to propel the United States of America forward as a technology leader and innovator. I implore whoever cares to listen to the voice of the people, defend Net Neutrality or else the entire country will suffer for it.

Regards,
-Ryan Figge